

Chinook Systems Inc.

Chinook Systems Inc. is a woman owned small business committed to supporting the successful delivery of construction projects. We specialize in commissioning, documentation, and maintenance management, all of which are critical components of building design, construction and operations. We act as a liaison between the owner, contractors and consultants.

The key to successful commissioning is to understand project 'deliverables' and then coordinate requirements and activities accordingly. When a facility is ready for the tenant, there should be no mad scramble to put together closeout information and run the facility.

The process of proper record keeping, document management and pre-planning for future operations is the heart of the unique project delivery software offered by Chinook. QuiCx (short for Quality In Commissioning) manages the commissioning process and provides for efficient methods of handling the mountain of paper that accompanies almost any project today.

Chinook Systems Inc. employs professionals with 15 to 25 years of specialized knowledge of commercial and government buildings, research laboratories, healthcare, and industrial facilities. Our employees are LEED Accredited Professionals, members of the Building Commissioning Association, and certified under the U.S Army Corps of Engineers, Construction Quality Management (CQM) for Contractors program.
